Here is an excerpt from the July 23 blog... While we were at the Koffee Klatch they were here:

Grayton Beach - We are here because Steve has been in contact with Scott Provow through the MG Enthusiast site for several months. Scott (Matt as he is called by his family) kindly offered us a place to stay for a couple of days. Imagine our surprise when we drive up to find he is a 19 year old, soon on his way to college! He arranged for us to stay in a luxurious guest house of one of the mansions in this resort area, complete with swimming pool. We met his grandfather, Gap Daddy, who has lots of interesting stories to tell, as his was the second family to settle here. He was a pilot in the Navy and used to fly over his house here and drop parachutes with treats for his children. Matt's parents, Leslie and Scott Sr. were also pilots in the Navy and then commercial pilots on long distance flights. Leslie was a leading force in saving the dunes from being bulldozed, keeping this beautiful area undeveloped. The beach won the "Best Beach in the World" award so many years running that it had to be taken out of the running to give other beaches a chance. We also met Matt's sister and aunts. What an amazing family! Southern Hospitality is not a myth!
